

Pharmaceutical Company Patient Assistance Programs and Cost-sharing Assistance Programs: Viral Hepatitis

February 2024

What is a Patient Assistance Program?

Patient assistance programs (PAPs) are run by, or in association with, pharmaceutical companies to provide free or low-cost medications to people with low incomes who generally do not qualify for any other insurance (such as Medicaid or Medicare). Some manufacturer PAPs may be open to certain insured people with low incomes to help with affordability challenges associated with out-of-pocket medication cost-sharing requirements.

Manufacturer PAPs maintain their own eligibility criteria, electronic enrollment portals, printable/fillable applications, and may offer expedited verification processes and first-time fills via a retail pharmacy in support of rapid antiretroviral therapy initiation. The table on Page 2 provides an overview of PAP contact information, drugs covered, and financial eligibility.

What is a manufacturer Cost-Sharing Assistance Program?

A manufacturer cost-sharing assistance program (CAP) is a program operated by pharmaceutical companies to offer cost-sharing assistance (including deductibles, co-payments and co-insurance) to people with private health insurance to obtain viral hepatitis treatment at the pharmacy. Manufacturer company CAPs cannot be used by individuals covered by Medicaid or Medicare and other restrictions may apply. The table on Page 3 provides an overview of manufacturer CAPs.

What other assistance is available for people requiring assistance accessing medications for hepatitis B or hepatitis C?

Several not-for-profit foundations and other organizations are available to help provide affordable access to medications for hepatitis B and/or hepatitis C, including people who are uninsured, underinsured, or insured requiring assistance with out-of-pocket costs. The programs may provide patient assistance or cost-sharing assistance for medications not covered by manufacturer programs, or may provide support to individuals who may not be eligible to participate in manufacturer programs (e.g., Medicare or military insurance coverage). The table on Page 4 lists several examples of these third-party assistance programs.
